ORATORY SILENT AS NATION GOES TO POLLS TODAY

Twenty-Odd Million Voters to Determine Fate of Candidates.

CANDIDATES REST

Many Factions Enter Into Political Puzzle Up to Voters.

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The largest electorate that ever cast a vote in any nation undertook today the task of unraveling the most puzzling tangle in modern American political history.

With three major candidates in the fight for president, with a full membership of the house to be chosen; with 34 senators and 74 governors to be elected and with thousands of lesser officers to be filled the twenty-odd million qualified voters of the nation began their march to the polls at dawn and throughout the length and breadth of the land under generally fair weather conditions they continued all day to record their will. Four months of fervent oratory changing recrimination, accusations, claims, predictions and warnings were stored in the thoughts of the voters as they marked their decisions on the ballot.

Ringed in their ears were the final pleas of the three major aspirants for the presidency. The Republican and Democratic standard bearers, Calvin Coolidge and John W. Davis, established a precedent in political campaigning by adding at the eleventh hour a radio appeal last night to an audience that reached from coast to coast. Senator La Follette the independent candidate closed his campaign to the voters. In addition to the urging of candidates for citizens to go to the polls an intense effort was made by hundreds of organizations "to get out the vote." Republicans, Democrats, Independents, women's organizations and almost every variety of political groups exercised itself to swell the total of ballots beyond anything ever seen in an American election.

Candidates Await Verdict.

The central figures in the contest, their arguments ended and their claims submitted the candidates awaited in their homes for the verdict.

President Coolidge passed the day in the white house silently awaiting the returns. He and Mrs. Coolidge had mailed their ballots to their North Hampton, Massachusetts, home. Mr. Davis declared the Democratic ticket would be returned because it deserves to win. He voted at Locust Valley, Long Island, and prepared to receive the returns in New York.

Senator La Follette, after an intensive drive voted in Madison, Wisconsin, his home town, and expressed his belief that his cause had won the favor of the voters. The vice-presidential candidates, all of whom have undergone the strain of weeks of campaigning, found themselves adjacent to the voting booths, except for Senator Wheeler the independent candidate, who took advantage of the mail voting privilege to send his ballot to Montana.

Charles G. Dawes, President Coolidge's running mate, voted in Evanston, Illinois, and Governor Bryan, the Democratic choice for vice-president, returned to Lincoln, Neb. in time to cast his ballot.

Splitting of Tickets

One of the most tangled aspects of today's balloting which will not be solved perhaps for several days, is the problem presented by splitting of tickets. Even with the voting in progress there was no one able to predict the trend that angle of the balloting might take.

There are 435 seats in the house of which the Republicans now hold 220, counting the LaFollette group, and the Democrats 206 and in the voting today in various parts of the country there are alignments, endorsements and unusual alliances between political groups and even the most sophisticated politicians hesitate to forecast the complexion of the next house, although both Democratic and Republican managers have formally placed their claims of victory.

The entry into the situation of the railroad brotherhood and the American Federation of Labor in support of Senator La Follette and their action at the same time in working for the election of various members of congress favorable to labor legislation are factors which it has been hard for the political prophets to fathom. Both Republican and Democratic managers have scouted the idea that labor would desert the older parties. Today's result will throw an interesting light on modern American political thought.

News Election Party Tonight to be Feature

Three Loud Speakers Installed at Convention Hall; Press Wires Busy.

The News party at the Memorial Hall tonight promises to be an interesting affair. At least, J. C. Treadwell, manager of the Memorial Hall end, is promising some good things. Not only will bands be on hand to help make the occasion lively, but loud speakers are being rigged up to make it possible for one to hear without any difficulty at any place in the large auditorium.

Belton Brady has spent much of the day, getting his powerful receiving set and loud speakers installed. By the time the returns start to come, about 7:30, the interesting news will be read to those assembled in the large hall.

Mr. Treadwell has a number of volunteer workers, who will be ready to get the information to you. Ott Reeve and E. C. Hogan, of the Choctaw Cotton Oil Company's organization, will help Mr. Treadwell in his many duties. Hugh Biles also will be ready to lend a hand.

At the last reports this afternoon, the loud speakers were about ready. The giant machine for snatching the news from the air has been placed, in case no mishap occurs, the air reports will help keep the news up to the minute.

The bulk of the news, however, will be furnished through the special wires of the Associated Press. Working rapidly, the receivers will take this news off the wires in the News office and it will be flashed across the city to the waiting citizens, anxious to know who will head their government for another four years. From the remotest boxes in the country this information will come in from hour to hour.

How long the entertainment will last will depend upon the speed with which the returns are tabulated and the interest continues.

Everything possible will be done to make the evening pleasant. Whether the returns please you or not, you will want to know what they are. Be in the hall by 7:30.

WORKERS TO COVER CITY FOR DRIVE

Fifty to Assist Red Cross Officials in Annual Roll Call.

Fifty workers will canvass the city of Ada November 11 in the annual Pontotoc county Red Cross Roll Call to secure sufficient funds to support the charitable demands of the city for another year.

The drive, headed by Robert Bradley and Judson Treadwell, will be one of the city-wide scope and will be rushed over in the first day if possible.

Committees of ten members will be named from the Lions and Kiwanis clubs, Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants to assist in the drive.

In order to further interest in the drive, a banquet for committees in the drive will be held Thursday evening at 6 o'clock at the Episcopal Parish house with several short luncheon speakers, who will outline the purpose and plans of the drive.

In preparing for the drive, Treadwell stated that the people of Ada should be informed of the expenditures of the money collected locally for Red Cross work, declaring that most of the money is kept here in Ada for use in local cases.

Treadwell stated that Ada is indeed fortunate in having as its Red Cross secretary, Mrs. Orville Sneed, who has no equal for untiring charitable work in the state. Mrs. Sneed is recognized throughout the state as one of the leaders in girls uplift work and for her interest in wayward children.

RECORD POLL IN ADA APPARENT IN EARLY TABULATION

Uptown Precincts Swamped by Voters at Early Hour This Morning.

NO DEMONSTRATIONS

Radio and Associated Press to Bring Returns of Election to Ada.

Clear skies with ideal weather conditions today brought immediate returns in the voting strength of Ada, the polls being rushed at an early hour this morning and entering a steady stream of voters at press time thereby assuring the greatest vote ever polled in the city.

At the opening of the polls this morning, a number of citizens were waiting to cast the first vote and before an hour had passed several precincts in Ada had registered over 50 votes.

At 2:30 this afternoon, a record vote was in evidence in the uptown precincts, practically all showing certainty of polling more votes than ever before. Voting at the Ford Ford garage, precinct 2, ward 1, showed that 154 had exercised rights of franchise. Approximately 280 votes were cast in this precinct in the primary. Precinct 1, ward 4 had registered 236 votes at the same hour, according to figures at the Convention hall, while the vote in the primary for this precinct was 425. Precinct 1, ward 1 at the City Hall showed the greatest gain in voting, 300 having visited the polls at 2:30 this afternoon, while the primary vote was 326. Ward 1, precinct 2 at the Prince-Chevrolet garage had voted 158 compared with a primary cast of about 270.

Late Voting Expected.

Precinct officials at the polls were certain that the late voting at the close of stores and release of employees would send another invasion on the polls and bring the vote of the city to its highest peak.

No inkling of information could be obtained from precinct officials at an early hour this afternoon but it is generally rumored that out of the precincts approached this afternoon W. B. Pine was leading in the senate race and the Democratic ticket in the county and nation was faring well.

Contrary to the heated political fever that has been raging in the county prior to the election, the city went about its election functions in peace and quiet without disturbance of any sort. None of the pre-election hilarities were in evidence as Ada citizens registered their political inclinations on ballots at the polls here today. The calm was apparently ready to subside with the final votes in the city this evening and the city ready to turn loose on the first returns to reach the city from county, state and national returns.

Ada will observe a step in the progress of time tonight in the receipt of election returns. Scores of radios in the city will be picking up the returns from the air, a new precedent for general election returns. The News will stage a party at the Convention Hall linking the radio with the dependable at-all-times Associated Press service in order that none interested will be deprived of the latest information concerning the election.

There was a noticeable absence of banners, demonstrations and the like for candidates. The personal work of party sponsors was also noticeably absent and voters went to the polls without efforts of influence on the part of anyone.

Feeling Running High Against Bill Tilghman's Slayer

(By the Associated Press)
WEWOKA, Nov. 4.—Feeling against Wiley Lynn, federal prohibition officer and slayer of William A. Tilghman, veteran peace officer at Cromwell Saturday night, continued high today in Seminole county and sporadic murmurings of possible mob action increased the tension at Cromwell.

Lynn is held at Holdenville upon order of federal authorities who will conduct an investigation. They allege that Lynn was entering a Cromwell dance hall to conduct a liquor raid when the encounter with Tilghman took place. Meanwhile a joint state and county investigation continues here with Edwin Dabney, assistant attorney general, assisting Walter Billingsley, county attorney.

Fair Voting Weather.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Fair weather ranging from Indian summer in Oklahoma to clear and cool in Wisconsin greeted the voters throughout the middle west, adding to the prospect of a record vote in the presidential election. Weather forecasts will be for a fair day for the polling and dry roads for the farmers.

Rodgers wounded shortly before noon today by Dan Powers, 50, who was defeated in the August primary as Republican candidate for magistrate in Henderson county, according to advices received here from Lexington, county seat of Henderson county.

Rogers was acting in the role of peace-maker when he was wounded, according to the reports received here. Powers is said to have escaped after the shooting.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—One man was killed, another probably mortally wounded and a third seriously wounded in a revolver battle outside a polling place where voters were casting their ballots today.

Election officials and police said they did not know whether the shooting had anything to do with the election or not.

LAS VEGAS, New Mexico, Nov. 4.—Polling places west of Las Vegas are being guarded today by soldiers of infantry and cavalry units of the New 5th Cavalry.

Up to 11 o'clock the institution of martial law here merely constituted protection of the voting places for the purpose of securing a quiet election, said Adjutant General John W. Skipwith today.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The usual calm of voiceless Washington prevailed at the White House today as the Nation goes to the polls.

President and Mrs. Coolidge made out their votes on absentee voting ballots and mailed them to North Hampton Massachusetts, their home and had nothing left today except the usual routine of office and await the first returns.

Most of the cabinet officers were out of the city vying in their hometowns. The others had engagements at the White House during the day along with a few other callers.

Tonight, in the early part of the evening at least, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge with Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston, their guests, will receive election returns sent to the executive offices over special wires.

It is expected that a radio set in the white house also will be used to follow the count.

Prof. W. K. Harris was introduced as the newest Lion and sufficiently tamed to permit his dwelling among the roaring jungle beasts.

A resolution in reference to the First National Bank was introduced and adopted. It follows:

"Resolved, that we, the Lions Club of Ada, express our congratulations to Mr. P. A. Norris and associates in the reorganization of the First National Bank and wish for the institution every success, as it takes its place among the business enterprises of the city and county."

On Sidelines

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—John W. Davis is taking a holiday today. To visitors who called at his home at Locust Valley Mr. Davis appeared obviously gratified that the campaign grind was over. He expressed confidence in the decision the electorate was making at the polls, but was clearly relieved that his personal role as candidate had come to an end. Even the task of citizens voter rested but light on him. He motored to Glen Cove early in the day and cast his ballot there within a short time he was out on the golf course.

Later he returned to his home to spend the remainder of the day with Mrs. Davis and his family. He planned early in the evening to motor to the home of Frank L. Polk in New York City to receive the election returns in the company of a few intimate friends.

MADISON, Wisconsin, Nov. 4.—Senator M. La Follette awaited at Maple Bluff farm the verdict of the American voters on the presidential campaign and expressed confidence today "that progress will win."

"There is but one issue before the people," he said in his final statement to voters, "it is whether the forces of reaction or the forces of progress shall determine the policies of the government."

"I am confident progress will win."

Senator La Follette voted in the mid morning.

ONLY FOUR OF BUS LOAD OF PEOPLE STILL ALIVE

(By the Associated Press)
NEW PORT NEWS, Va., Nov. 4.—Only four of the 15 persons in a bus struck by Chesapeake-Ohio passenger train late yesterday at a blind crossing remained alive today. Only one of these, an infant, was thought to have a fair chance to recover. Eight died before rescuers arrived and three others died shortly after.

Few details of the accident were obtainable today. Ben Catlin, engineer of the train, was making 45 miles an hour, said the first indication that he had that the bus was on the track was the crash. None of the survivors could be interviewed. A coroner's jury after viewing the scene decided not to hold its inquest until tomorrow.

The bus which operated between Northampton and Toquoson, Virginia, was struck squarely in the center and demolished. Bodies of the dead and injured together with fragments of the wrecked car were dragged along the road for several hundred yards.

STATE AT POLLS TO ELECT HEADS OF GOVERNMENTS

All Issues of the Campaign Overshadowed by Pine-Walton Race.

KLAN MENTIONED

Seven Oklahoma Congressmen Running for Re-election.

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 4.—In a haze of uncertainty engendered by probably the most "topsy turvy" campaign in the state's history, Oklahomans went to the polls today to cast their ballots for a president, a United States senator, eight congressmen and several state officers. Favorable weather will bring out a record vote of 600,000 officials believe.

All issues of the campaign were overshadowed by the race between J. C. Walton, former governor, democratic candidate for the senate and W. B. Pine, Okmulgee millionaire, republican standard bearer. A sustained fight by the republican organization, independents and democrats who left their party, has been waged on Walton. An alleged attack on Protestant ministers brought down the wrath of a portion of Oklahoma church people and from pulpits and church council room condemnation of the candidate was voiced. Walton rallied to his support those who opposed the Ku Klux Klan, which the former governor, insisted throughout his campaign was the "only issue."

Democratic headquarters, in the closing days of the race, charged the Klan was endeavoring to throw its support to Coolidge and that the invisible empire in Oklahoma would "knife" the entire state ticket. Walton opponents persisted the only issue was Waltonism.

To what extent the opposition to Walton has crystallized is the answer to today's election "cross word puzzle." Democratic headquarters claim Walton's election by "more than 25,000," and a victory for the national ticket. The candidate himself predicts a victory by 100,000 with Davis and Bryan trailing him by several thousand. Republican leaders hazard no guess as to figures, being content to say, "we'll win."

Upon the outcome of the senatorial race may hinge the result in the national derby. There is no refutation, it seems, that Oklahoma is a doubtful state, and that a Walton or Pine expression may be reflected in the vote for Davis or Coolidge. J. Luther Langston, La Follette state manager, claims a La Follette victory, declaring the independent ticket will poll more than 200,000 votes.

In the supreme court "race" contests are on for six places. In two districts, the first and ninth, the race is said to be the closest, with considerable doubt that the democratic color bearers will emerge victorious. Charles W. Mason of Nowata, incumbent, is the democratic candidate in the first and Fletcher Riley, Lawton, in the ninth. Bruce L. Keenan is Mason's republican opponent and Joseph H. Cline is opposing Riley.

Following are the candidates for the supreme court other than those mentioned above:

Democrats—E. F. Lester, James I. Phelps, Albert C. Hunt, J. W. Clark. Republicans—T. H. Du Bois, Edward D. Oldfield, M. C. Spradling, Paul F. Cooper, Thomas A. Edwards, democrat and A. A. Kelly, republican, are seeking the vacant place in the criminal court of appeals.

Although supreme court and criminal court of appeals candidates are nominated by districts they are voted upon by the state-at-large.

Seven of Oklahoma's congressmen seek reelection and one republican, are up for reelection. In one district, the first, the race is between new aspirants. It is generally believed all the incumbents will be returned.

Following are the candidates:

First District—Wayne Bayless, dem.; Vinita; S. J. Montgomery, rep.; Bartlesville.

Second—W. W. Hastings, dem. x. Tablquist; P. E. Reed, rep.; Wagoner.

Third—Charles D. Carter, dem. x. Ardmore; Don Welch, rep.; Madill.

Fourth—Tom D. McKeown, dem. x. Ada; Chas. E. Wells, rep.; Shawnee.

Fifth—F. B. Swank, dem. x. Norman; John Golobie, rep.; Norman.

Sixth—Elmer Thomas, dem. x. Medicine Park; L. H. Gensman, rep. Lawton.

Seventh—Jim V. McClintic, dem. x. Snyder; Walter S. Mills, rep. Arapahoe.

Eighth—V. P. Crowe, dem.; Enid; M. C. Garber, rep.; Enid.

x—Indicates incumbents.

All of the 107 members of the house of representatives of the state legislature and 22 members of the senate are being chosen today.

The Truant Soul

By Victor Rousseau
Copyright by W. G. Chapman

Myers was yelling as Joan had once heard a horse yell, trapped in a burning stable. The wood of the door was smoldering. Joan tried to reach the key. But the rigid body barred her way.

Then she heard her name called through the smoke. At the cry Mrs. Dana snatched the key from the lock.

She Staggered and Fell Into Lancaster's Arms.

and began to run along the corridor. Joan saw her dimly through the enveloping smoke. She staggered, and fell into Lancaster's arms.

That was her last effort. Incapable of speech, she felt him bear her along the passage, where the smoke clouds were now shot through with streaks of flame. They thickened about her. Lancaster was carrying her down the stairs now, while hungry flames sprang at them from the walls and floor. He was staggering drunkenly when they reached the hall below.

He placed her on the grass, and plunged back into the flames. The institute was ablaze, fire streamed from the roof and windows. A group of villagers, clustered upon the lawn, looked on helplessly. Joan saw Jenkins, leading the matron, approaching her. She tried to tell him that Lancaster had come back; she could not speak, but he understood her.

"The doctor's safe," he said, and as he spoke Joan saw Lancaster among a group of men who had gathered about something wrapped in a blanket. He rose and came to her. That was all Joan remembered.

And for days and nights her memories of the past were cut short with Lancaster's return that night, borne back by the power of her love flung across the miles between them. She knew that he lived, and as the nightmare of the end filtered into her mind there came with it the sense of an abiding peace, as if the past was dead with all its terrors.

MILITARY DISPLAY FEATURES FIRST BIRTHDAY OF PRINCE

(By the Associated Press)

BELGRADE—Celebration of the first anniversary of the birth of Prince Peter, heir to the Yugoslavian throne, was made the occasion of a great military display which has aroused much opposition in several quarters.

All the troops of the Belgrade garrisons were turned out, and the principal streets leading to the cathedral, where the principal ceremonies were held, was lined with infantry, the soldiers wearing steel helmets, while the side streets near the edifice were full of small artillery, machine guns and other warlike material.

The country is indeed quite proud of the year-old prince, and his recent pictures, showing clearly that he has the traditional Karageorge nose, have been placed on sale everywhere.

"There is your work at Avonmouth. There is the hospital which you have made famous throughout the United States. Your work is there, not in some obscure place where it would be of less use to the world and no example. Besides, consider that if you become famous again, as you must, you will be discovered. And one can never leave his past behind him. That follows everywhere."

"Yes, that is true," muttered Lancaster, staring out over the darkening hills. "Well, I leave it to you, my dear, but to go back to fight out a futile battle seems to me now something unendurable."

"You must go back to the institute, and then to Avonmouth, and meet your enemies, Joan," she said. "I shall be at your side. Nothing will make me afraid or weaken my love for you."

His face twitched. "Not if I tell you things which prove me worthless of your love?" he asked. "Not if you find I am an outcast man who has deserved his misfortune?"

She only smiled at him. "I shall not judge you by your words," she said. "Nor yet by other men's opinions, but by knowledge of you."

"Then I shall tell you everything," he answered, drawing Joan's hand into his. "Everything, but not here. Here I shall keep the peace of the hills within my heart, and you."

So they strolled back toward the cabin, and Joan's drab-colored life was transmuting in this, her first love, to gold. She lived in her lover, she trusted wholly in him who had brought love to her, not like a conquering god, but in the simplest guise, making it the unfolding of her own loving nature. She gave her youth, her innocence as love's price, and thought the exchange her profit. There was never such peacefulness in any place as there that evening, and in Joan's heart was abounding peace likewise.

When they reached the cabin the patient was better. Lancaster spent the evening giving detailed instructions to the man's wife.

"I shall do my best to come again if I am needed," he said. "But I can't promise. I may be called to Avonmouth at any moment. Keep him quiet, for heaven's sake keep him absolutely motionless for a week, and then let him sit up if he wants to. And nothing to eat but the schedule I am making out for you."

Afterward Joan told Lancaster that she wished to stay for a few days to take care of the man. But Lancaster would not hear of it.

"These hill people never die," he said. "He'll be up and about before the week is over."

"But the diet?"

"They'll feed him on soda biscuits as soon as he's well enough to eat anything. Fortunately he won't be able to eat for a week, so he won't come to any harm. I shall send Jenkins over two or three times to report progress."

Joan's room was a tiny place under the eaves. She spent a sleepless, happy night there, thinking over the happiness that had come to her. It was strange and wonderful to lie awake under the same roof that sheltered Lancaster, and to reflect how soon their lives would flow together, calmly, in their own country. She could not have wished any happier fate in life.

With her limited experience, it seemed ideal that, after the years of stress in Avonmouth, she should be returning, almost to her own home, a wife. She had puzzled sometimes over Lancaster's long residences in the place that bore his name. But she dreamed of the time when he would give up his work at Avonmouth, and retire to a new institute, a spacious home where they could fill their wards with the country people, where her life's vocation and her life's happiness would be united.

At last she fell asleep, and, when she awoke, Lancaster was tapping at her door.

"Time to get up, Joan," he called cheerfully.

She sprang out of bed. "How is the patient?" she asked.

"Doing finely and wants to go to work," said Lancaster, laughing.

Joan dressed in a hurry and ran downstairs. Lancaster was waiting on the porch. She raised her face for his kiss, already natural to her, already the happy fulfillment of her innocent dreams of love. Then, arm in arm, they strolled out into the sunlight.

The glorious light lay on every hill. In that light all the shadows of the past seemed to shrivel away.

"We are going back to the institute this morning, Joan," said Lancaster. She nodded happily. "I am ashamed to feel so gay when you are unhappy," she said.

"I am not unhappy, Joan," he answered. "I thought over everything last night, and I see now that you were right. I shall go back. Of course I shall go back. I shall regain what I have lost, and I shall face my enemies and beat them."

At ten o'clock the horse was harnessed and the drive back began.

At first Joan, seated at her lover's side, breathed in the mountain air, the sense of freedom, the scent of the pines, the joy of the sunlight. Then the peaks began to tower above them. The dulled valley air struck something from her joy, but not too much from her to dream. She looked fondly at Lancaster, who drew her hand into his.

"I am going back to win," he said again.

Later the sun went into clouds. The air grew moister, the hills flushed then, the familiar landmarks began to reappear. And now something of Lancaster's despondency of the evening before came over Joan. And again, as if sensing her mood, he reiterated:

Sometimes she felt that Lancaster was beside her; but when at last complete consciousness returned Joan found herself in bed in a strange house. Through the windows she could see the outlines of the familiar mountains, gilded in the red sunset glow against the blue of the sky. Beside her sat a figure which seemed to be so remotely of the past that it was difficult to refrain from laughing at the incongruity of the sight.

It was Jenkins, with his black head. As Joan stirred he turned toward her. "That's right, Miss Wentworth," he said heartily. "Now you've rounded the corner, and I reckon the lane lies straight before you."

"The doctor did not steal that money," murmured Joan weakly.

Jenkins laughed as if her words amused him immensely. "Why, Miss Wentworth, you've been saying that to me every time you wake these five days past," he said, "but I couldn't ever get you to tell me how you knew it."

"I don't remember saying it before," said Joan.

"I reckon you've been pretty weak, Miss Wentworth. But tell me now how you know it."

"I don't know. Why, yes, of course I do. Doctor Lancaster couldn't steal anything. Where is he?"

"I'll fetch him, Miss Wentworth. He wants to see you; he's been sitting beside you for days waiting till you really woke up."

"I'm not harmed, Doctor Jenkins?" asked Joan in alarm.

"Not the least little bit, Miss Wentworth. I'll bring you a mirror."

"No, I take you on trust. What made me so ill, Doctor Jenkins?"

The doctor hesitated. The old obstinate look began to close down on his features. But Joan caught him by the arm, ingratiatingly.

"Come, now, tell me," she said. "Did he—did he inject morphine into me?"

"No, Miss Wentworth," said Jenkins, unable to hold out. "It wasn't morphine. It was curare—the stuff that paralyzes the motor nerves without destroying consciousness." His face grew somber. "It doesn't leave traces, as morphine does, and that devil had put it into morphine bottles and made the doctor think he was a morphine fiend. They hoped to kill him more quickly, but somehow he got used to it, and I guess they were at their wits' ends when you came along. But I'll call the doctor, Miss Wentworth."

When he was gone Joan lay back on her pillows, looking out into the mountains. She knew what had occurred that night; in her drugged state she had seen the whole dreadful picture: Myers unlocking Mrs. Dana's door and leading her to her own room, where she had obtained the revolver; her journey to Lancaster's room, bent on her dreadful mission; the murder of Lawson, in the room opposite, instead, for reasons which would never be known, but were certainly providential.

She saw further, by the same intuition which told her that it had been Mrs. Dana's body wrapped in the blanket upon the lawn. Myers, knowing her to be drugged, and believing Lancaster dead, had waited in Mrs. Dana's room and given her the matches, on her return, with which to start the fire, hoping thus to make sure of his victims and cover up his tracks. And he had fallen into the trap he had baited. Strong as he was, there must have been a stronger Power fighting him with Mrs. Dana's arms that night, when she turned the key in the lock and left him to die as he had willed Joan should die.

But Joan knew that no word of this would ever pass between Lancaster and her. And indeed, as she lay back and looked across the fields toward the mountains, she felt that something had turned that page, so that it had become not only of the dead past, but unreal in a way, and only the present peace existed.

She heard a quick step without. Lancaster stood in the doorway, came toward her, knelt at her side and took her hands in his. And with that even the memories of the past became tenuous, half forgotten.

"Dear, it has come true," he said tenderly.

She lay happily in his arms, looking out all the time toward the sunset on the hills. There was so little to say, because their lives were only beginning.

"I don't want to go back to Avonmouth," she said at length.

"Nor I, Joan. This is our country."

"It must always be our country. But—the night, Joan?"

"I have stolen a march on you, my dear," he answered gayly. "I have fought out my fight while you were ill. I have resigned from the hospital; nobody guesses anything there; and I have convinced the trustees here, by my appearance, and by the presentation of certain papers happily discovered after the fire, that I am a responsible, moral person, honest enough to head the new institute which we are going to build—guess where?"

She looked at him. Then—

"That village in the mountains," she cried happily. "Where our lives really began. I could not wish for anything better."

"And the patient is going to be our porter. And Doctor Jenkins will be house surgeon, resident, with his wife—Joan, he didn't tell you about Mrs. Fraser? Jenkins! Jenkins!" His voice rang through the little house. "Come in at once and face the fire like a man, instead of sinking away into your consulting-room, you radiant young benedict!"

m. and close in the cities at 7 p. m. and 6 p. m. in the country districts.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 3.—With party lines hopelessly entangled and issues so involved that no two political leaders agree on the problems of the campaign, W. B. Pine, Republican of Okmulgee, and J. C. Walton, Democrat, of Oklahoma City, United States senatorial aspirants, completed their arguments today and laid their case before the jury of Oklahoma voters which at the general election tomorrow will render a verdict.

No less baffling is the contemplation of the way Oklahoma will go in the national race. Naturally both Democratic and republican leaders claim Oklahoma for their presidential electors. Refusing to be pushed into the background, J. Luther Langston, manager of the independent campaign, declares La Follette will carry the state and will poll more than 200,000 votes. Opponents will not concede the independent ticket more than 90,000 votes in the state.

However, the national issue in Oklahoma has almost been overlooked in the intensity of the senatorial fight. Thousands of democrats have openly bolted the ticket to scratch J. C. Walton while great numbers have defected from the republican ranks to scratch Pine. Walton, as in the primary, concentrated his attack upon the Ku Klux Klan. Pine, early in the campaign, disavowed membership in the Klan, but the democrats continued to charge sympathy and support on his part. A reported attack on the Protestant ministers by Walton aroused a portion of the church people and denominational denouncement of him poured in from many sections of the state. Both the Oklahoma Baptist and Methodist conferences passed condemnatory resolutions. From pulpit and church class room came scathing denunciations of the former governor. Klan domination was responsible for these acts, Walton retorted.

At the height of the fight an anti-Walton club was formed with R. H. Wilson, former superintendent of education and democratic gubernatorial candidate, at the head. An Anti-Klan organization was formed. The currents of public sentiment and party attachment became indistinguishably crossed.

On the eve of the election few unbiased observers hazard a guess as to the outcome of the Walton-Pine contest. Walton carried his campaign into every county, attracted great crowds and almost invariably left dissent in his wake. Not a few times demonstrations resulted in open disturbances and at Atoka Walton left the speaking platform, striding up to a spectator who had heckled him. By-standers prevented violence.

Democrats in Congress

In six of the eight congressional districts, democrats are believed to have the edge. In the eighth district, the only republican district in the state, M. C. Garber, incumbent, probably will win over his democratic opponent, the youthful V. P. Crowe, it is believed. The first district, formerly represented by E. B. Howard of Tulsa, possibly may go republican. The race between Mayne W. Bayless, democrat, Vinitta and S. J. Montgomery, republican, Bartlesville.

The five democratic members of congress who it is believed will be re-elected are: Tom D. McKeown, Ada; Jim V. McClintie, Snyder; Elmer Thomas, Medicine Park; Chas. Carter, Ardmore, and F. E. Swank, Norman.

There is doubt in the supreme court and corporation commission race, with the possibility that one and maybe two republicans will be added to the state supreme court. Justice Charles W. Mason, in the first district, democrat, will be hard pressed by his republican opponent, Bruce L. Keenan, it is conceded and the race between Fletcher Riley, democrat and Joseph H. Cline, republican, in the ninth, will be close, it is indicated. While the supreme court candidates are nominated by districts they are elected by the state at large.

The corporation commission contest is between Fred Capshaw, democrat, Dick Quinn, republican, and L. L. Libbey, Farmer-Labor.

Although it was stated the Farmer-Labor party had withdrawn the name of George Wilson as U. S. senatorial candidate, his name remains on the ballot. There are three independent candidates for the senate. They are, L. N. Bryant, Thomas P. Hopley and Alonzo Turner. Jack Benson and Campbell Russell, former corporation commission chairman, who entered as independents in the senate race, withdrew. Benson's name continued on the ballot, the withdrawal coming too late. It has been marked out.

Twenty-two members of the state senate of the legislature and a full delegation—167—in the house will be elected today.

Election officials predict a vote of 600,000, a record for the state.

Pola Negri Here.

"Lily of the Dust," the Paramount picture which opened a two days' run at the McSwain theatre yesterday, is a production bound to satisfy the most finicky picture fan. Pola Negri is the star. Every time we come to the conclusion that she has just about reached the heights of characterization she comes along in a new picture to surprise us with something new.

"Lily of the Dust" was adapted by Paul Bern from a novel by Hermann Sudermann and the play by Edward Sheldon. Pola has the role of Lily, a poor but very beautiful girl, whose fascination for men is a curse to her. In love with one man, she is forced by circumstances to marry another, only to learn that marriage without love is most unhappy. Men are attracted to her, and she finds herself being pushed along the easiest way that eventually leads to destruction. Fate takes pity upon her, and in the end she finds happiness.

As in her previous starring vehicle, "Men" Buchowetzki gives ample proof of the fact that he can get the elemental fire out of Pola for which she is famous. Noah Beery, Ben Lyon, Raymond Griffith are all deserving of high praise for their respective portrayals. The rest of the supporting cast is more than acceptable.

"Lily of the Dust," is well worth a visit to the McSwain theatre.

Monks to Observe Anniversary

OXFORD, Nov. 4.—The 700th anniversary of the arrival of the Franciscan Friars in Oxford will be observed by Monks here. A pontifical high mass will be celebrated at the Church of St. Marys, on the site of the ancient friary.

Because of the close connection between the Friars and the University and City of Oxford in medieval days, the Lord Mayor and the Vice-Chancellor will take part in the celebrations.

campaign in many of the state contests, and one that has appeared also in the national campaign, that of the Ku Klux Klan has played a prominent part in a number of gubernatorial and senatorial fights. This is particularly true in Indiana, Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas where national issues have been more or less overshadowed by the bitterness of local feeling on the subject.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 4.—Reports from virtually every section of Oklahoma at noon today indicate that, votes which may prove a record in the state, are being cast.

The election machinery ordered reorganized in every county Saturday night by Governor M. E. Trapp in order that the Ku Klux Klan and its opponents might have equal representation in the election board apparently was functioning smoothly in every county except Tulsa county. There the old board refused to give way to the reorganized one.

Throughout the state it was without incident except as to its volume.

A Remarkable Yodeler.
Mr. Norris Nelson, "Swiss Yodeler" with J. A. Coburns Minstrels this season at the McSwain theatre on Friday, Nov. 7 is one of the best in his line. Possessing a remarkably pleasing tenor voice, and among others introducing an entirely new yodel of his own composition his tones are absolutely true and of rare sweetness making this one of the strong features of the first part ensemble. Manager Coburn has made every effort to maintain the reputation of the company as a fine singing show as well as a top notch performance in the comedy line. Coburns Minstrels is one of the oldest in consecutive seasons enroute in America and justly merits its popularity and success.

THREE CANDIDATES SEEK STATE VOTES

Presidential Candidate Managers in Oklahoma Predict Victory.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 4.—Oklahoma headquarters of the three major candidates for the presidency have voiced their confidence in victory at the polls today. Only one spokesman, J. Luther Langston, state manager of the LaFollette candidacy, amplified his statement by indulging in numerical possibilities.

While both the democratic and republican headquarters declared their tickets, national and state would win, Langston claimed LaFollette would carry the state, polling more than 200,000 votes.

W. B. Hines, publicity director for the democratic headquarters, declared "the state ticket from top to bottom will be elected, with J. C. Walton, senatorial candidate and Davis and Bryan running about even." Hines said that the complexity of the issues made numerical claims ridiculous, but that "it was certain that the nominally democratic districts will pile up enough of a vote to insure victory."

Ed Dyche, manager of W. B. Pine's senatorial campaign's speaking for the republican headquarters said:

"The republican state ticket will win today, with W. B. Pine leading. His margin over J. C. Walton will be comfortable. Coolidge and Dawes will carry the state by a substantial plurality over Davis and Bryan and LaFollette and Wheeler. A statement issued from democratic headquarters said: "The democratic headquarters has no desire to make any unusual prediction regarding the result of the election. Normally Oklahoma is a democratic state and the reports given by the various districts and county workers to State Chairman R. L. Davidson and his associates of the democratic committee, indicate that the state will at least give its usual democratic majority."

"These reports indicate that the state ticket will be successful in at least six of the eight congressional districts, and we have good reasons for believing success may be given in each of the districts. The wild rumor to the effect that one or more of the state candidates is in danger of defeat are not warranted by reliable reports. At this time there is no indication of the slightest variance between the presidential candidate, the senatorial aspirant and the lowest color bearer on the ticket."

LEAGUE SECRETARY TO BE ASKED AT CONFERENCE

MCALISTER, Nov. 4.—At the 79 annual session of the East Oklahoma conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, which convenes here November 6, the conference Epworth League board will be asked to ratify a recent action of the Epworth League board of the church, providing for the employment and direction of regional field secretaries of the league throughout the bounds of the church, it was announced by Bishop John M. Moore, who will preside over the conference.

The office of regional secretary is recommended due to the rapid growth of the Epworth league organization and increasing participation of the league in the work of the Methodist church.

The regional secretary will be selected following the annual conference meetings of the church and probably will enter upon his duties following the Epworth League president's meeting at Dallas in February, 1925.

The conference Epworth league board will foster the regional field secretary for the area included in the East Oklahoma conference. The field secretaries will work under the direction of the central office which is located at Nashville, Tenn. under Dr. F. S. Parker as general secretary.

The Epworth league recently pledged itself to raise $100,000 for missionary extension during 1924.

Democrats Win Out in Three National Races in Oklahoma

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 4.—In the four national elections in which Oklahoma has participated, the democratic ticket has been winner three times and the Republicans once. In 1920 Oklahoma went with the national landslide and gave Warren Harding 243,464 votes and James M. Cox 215,808. Woodrow Wilson in 1916 piled up the greatest plurality of a presidential candidate, leading Charles Evans Hughes by more than 50,000 votes. In 1912 Wilson led Taft by more than 30,000 votes.

In 1912, the year Theodore Roosevelt bolted the Republican ticket and ran as Progressive, Oklahoma did not give him a vote. Owing to the state law which at that time included but three tickets eligible for the ballot, Roosevelt's name was barred. Oklahoma was the only state in the union which recorded no Roosevelt vote. Following are the national election results in Oklahoma: 1908, Bryan 122,363, Taft, 110,474, Debs 21,734. 1912 Wilson 119,156, Taft, 90,786, Roosevelt, none, Debs, 41,674. 1916 Wilson, 148,113, Hughes 97,233, Benson 45,637. 1920 Harding 243,464 Cox 215,808, Debs 25,679.

COLLEGE THRILLS PROVE SUCCESS FOR ADA HI

College Thrills, a new comedy drama by Jas. L. German, was presented by the Public Speaking club of Ada high school at the Convention Hall last evening. Those who were fortunate enough to see this play are very generous in their praise of both director and players.

This play, which was suggested by the recent Franks murder case, was a picture of city life. Lewis Huffstein, a wealthy ex-college boy believes in science and philosophy and is somewhat of a skeptic. Richard his closest pal is however a lover of thrills. Being unable to find thrills enough in Chicago he suggests an airplane trip down the Hudson. They take Willie Randolph a boy of thirteen with them, "because he wants to go," and trouble begins. Mrs. Randolph and Martha are worried over Willie's disappearance after "The Tribune" reports foul play in the park. Judge Long investigates and suspects Lewis and Richard. Mr. Huffstein is very enraged. McFinn "got 'em at the alibi landin' besorra!" Lewis calls the "mad man" to save his neck, after much explanation the boys are released and forgiven. Then occurs a serious case of "bi-plane love."

Edna Gray playing the part of Mrs. Randolph and Dixie Lee Russell playing the part of her daughter were the outstanding stars of the performance. Raymond Webb playing the part of Lewis Huffstein made a tremendous hit with his peculiar brogue and quaint personality. Martin Landers as Mike McFinn kept the audience laughing throughout the play. Carl Duncan, Cecil Myers, Lucile Webster, and Irene Holmes had strong parts which they played excellently.

Ada High school is to be commended that it has such a capable director and such an excellent group of players.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE WORK OF RIGHTEOUSNESS shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness, quietness and assurance for ever. And my people shall dwell in a peaceable habitation, and in sure dwellings, and in quiet resting places.—Isaiah 32:17, 18.

VIOLENT DEATHS ON INCREASE.

Violent deaths are becoming so numerous that news items concerning them are considered commonplace. Those we read of today are forgotten tomorrow, for tomorrow presents us with a new list, and so it goes on from day to day and from week to week. Only recently one of our prominent Texas dailies displayed on page one announcements of thirty-three deaths and seventy-eight injuries, all of a violent nature. In this list was chronicled a train wreck and a moving picture panic, the result of a false alarm of fire.

Sometimes a disaster taking a toll of a large number of lives startles us, but we are almost without emotion when it comes to reading the daily list of killed and crippled, the result of carelessness and disregard for the lives of others. A large number of deaths result from the demand for thrills at public expositions. Daredevil stunts with airplanes; acrobatic acts on the wings; parachute jumps; record breaking efforts on race tracks, all contribute to the daily list of dead and injured. The automobile, however, when used for pleasure or for business, is running ahead of all other violent death agencies and efforts to reduce the number of victims prove futile. Death notices, the sight of wrecked cars or the constant sounding of the sirens of the ambulances make no impression on many automobile drivers. They go tearing down the street or the public highways at dangerous speed, laughing at narrow escapes—taking chances so often that they become immune to any fear for their own safety or for that of others.

Most drivers who run down pedestrians or other automobiles stoutly maintain that the accident was unavoidable, or swear that it was the other fellow's fault. There are unavoidable accidents, but by far a greater number would never have happened had not the driver been in such a hurry. Too many drivers, going nowhere in particular, crowd the speed limit and often pass it. The sight of a car ahead of them is like a red flag waved in the face of a bull. They step on the gas and try to pass everything in sight without regard to their own safety or that of others. Such drivers are a public nuisance and a menace and should be prohibited from putting a hand on an automobile steering wheel. The only way to rid the roads and streets of them is to license drivers and take the license away from those who break the laws or in other ways show themselves unfit to assume the responsibilities of driving a motor car of any description.—Farm and Ranch.

THE AUTO HOBO.

Recently we've been noticing in exchanges occasional items that lead us to believe this country is in for a new type of hobo. We have not seen so many tramps in recent years as once migrated through these parts, and recent newspaper comment leads us to believe that they have been transformed into a new and more modern class of rovers, that they now travel in pullman car style instead of on the bumpers.

One editor points out that the auto hobo has hit this section on several occasions recently, and that the country is about to be infested with them. It is easy for a common, ordinary tramp to secure a discarded flivver that can easily be made to run. He can get from one town to another with ease, and instead of "bumming" a bed in a haymow he can sleep in his car alongside the road. He can easily pick up a chicken here and roasting ears there and be miles away before the owner misses them. He can make his campfire where he pleases and he gets his gasoline money by begging it, just as he once got enough to keep himself supplied with booze. He is not in danger of arrest for violating the speed limit, because he prefers to take it leisurely, camping wherever night overtakes him and sponging on tender-hearted housewives who are good enough to listen to his new line of hardluck.

So far we haven't noticed the appearance of the auto hobo in Altus. But he must be getting numerous, from all newspaper accounts, so we may rest assured that he will be here in plenty of time to make himself a nuisance.—Altus Times-Democrat.

The killing of Bill Tilghman removes the last of a number of early day peace officers who waged war on the desperadoes who infested the two territories. Tilghman and his kind were all that kept the territories from anarchy. More than one officer gave his life to the cause of law and order and Tilghman himself had many close calls. It is the irony of fate that having seen the country pass through all the changes that led up to the establishment of law and order he should fall as he did. Oklahoma owes him a debt of gratitude for the work he did for his efforts were all for law and order.

By the time this paper is in the hands of its readers the election will be settled for four years. Nothing but the counting, the shouting and a week or two devoted to explanations of how it all came about and what might have been or could have been if—

TULSA UNIVERSITY TO BOOST CAGING SQUAD

TULSA, Nov. 4.—With 20 men in training from which to pick a basketball team, Coach H. M. Achers of the University of Tulsa is optimistic about his aggregation. He expects to enter in the Oklahoma state conference race this winter. This year's team will be recruited mostly from the ranks of the freshmen class, Coach Achers said. Two of the last year's team are on the squad and there are several substitutes and members of the 1921 and 1922 squads who are expected to find places this season. Gray, captain and forward, Murphy, center, who played in the first team last year, will be the backbone of the five, according to the coach. Forwards will be selected from a group of preparatory and high school stars. "Brownie" Leabitt of Tulsa, high scorer on the Tulsa church league last year, Bianchi, high score in the Southeastern high school conference and Brumfield, forward and center of the 1922 squad are counted upon as valuable men.

Possible guards are: Rodgers, Herndon, substitute guard last year, Hamilton, substitute guard last year, Perry, a guard from the 1921 squad and Patton, star guard of the Wentworth Military academy, who is in Tulsa university for his first year, Olson, six feet, four inches tall, now center on the football team may win the same position in the basketball team, Achers believes.

"The majority of the squad will be new to followers of the team," Coach Achers said, "but the individuals are showing up well in practice and there is every indication that we will have a good team this winter."

WALTON VICTORY WOULD GIVE U. S. KLAN FIGHT

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 4.—Victory at today's election will give John Callaway Walton, Democratic candidate, an opportunity to carry his war on the Ku Klux Klan into the United States senate.

Outlining what policies he would foster as a member of the senate, Walton has indicated he would prepare and introduce at the earliest opportunity a national anti-klan bill designed to "unmask" the invisible empire and "make public its membership and policies."

W. B. Pine, Republican, has no pet policies to bring before the congress, should the voters of Oklahoma send him to occupy the seat in the senate which will be vacated by Senator Robert L. Owen. He has declared he would "get acquainted first" and then follow the dictates of his conscience and the consul of the best legislative minds, together with the advice of his people in Oklahoma. Remedial legislation for farmers is needed, Pine said, declaring he intended giving that some consideration.

Walton, also, favors farm legislation and will, if elected, advocate aid to co-operative marketing organizations and an extension of agricultural markets, he has indicated. He will ally himself with the group favoring the repeal of the Esch-Cummins act, he has declared.

Both candidates stand behind the national platforms, they have said. Buy it—rent it—sell it—find it with a NEWS want ad.

British Election.

Labor as a ruling power has been tried in England and found wanting. That must be the conclusion from the results of last Wednesday's election in which the laborites were decisively defeated and the conservatives returned to power by an overwhelming majority. Another interesting feature of the English, one which carries significance for the United States, was the virtual elimination of the liberty party of Asquith and Lloyd George. England seems disposed to return to the bi-partisan system which has prevailed there for so many years.

The laborites ruled as a minority party—held power by the suffrage of the conservatives and liberals. There never was a time from the date of the inauguration of the MacDonald regime that the laborites could not have been turned out on a moment's notice.

But England played fair with labor, gave it every opportunity to make good. At the same time it gave it sufficient rope to hang itself, believing that ultimately would be the result.

Labor went into power with certain political obligations. No party can escape them. Labor owed obligations to certain minority elements which had thrown their strength to the MacDonald party. Much the same relation would exist between La Follette and the Socialists if the independent ticket were elected in this country.

The opposition of labor awaited its opportunity, knowing it would come. The proposed Russian treaty and the apparent shielding of an accused communist editor furnished the climax for labor's regime. They gave the opposition the issues it awaited.

Labor probably will not be returned to power in England for a long time—if ever. But England will profit from her experience with the laborite rule. England has learned that the laborites are not so radical or extreme as she feared. Responsibility had a sobering influence on laborite leadership. MacDonald's conduct of the premiership has been marked by caution, conservatism and patriotic regard for the throne and the interests of all classes. England has learned that laborites are not all wild-eyed fanatics seeking to destroy.

A taste of responsibility has given the laborites greater understanding and comprehension of the affairs of government and the multitude of interests that must be conserved. Labor has learned to appreciate there are two sides of the question.

Undoubtedly a closer understanding, greater sympathy, will result from this contact between the extreme elements of English society. From this closer understanding there will come a new spirit of compromise, mutual interest and co-operation.

SMOTHERING SPELLS

Lady Says She Suffered from a Burning Sensation, Headache, Dizziness, Until She Took Black-Draught.

Signal, Miss.—"For a year or longer I had indigestion, and had it bad," says Mrs. E. S. Holman, of this place. "Everything I ate hurt me. I would have burning in my stomach and smothering spells, and after meals feel right dizzy. My head would begin to ache, and I would want to lie down, but felt I couldn't for I would smother."

"Unless one has had such trouble, they don't know what it is. I was talking to a neighbor one day and told her how I had been affected. She told me it was indigestion and to try Black-Draught, which I did. I took a few large doses and then a pinch after meals, and for fully four months now I haven't had indigestion. I eat whatever I please and when I please, but keep up the Black-Draught—just an occasional dose."

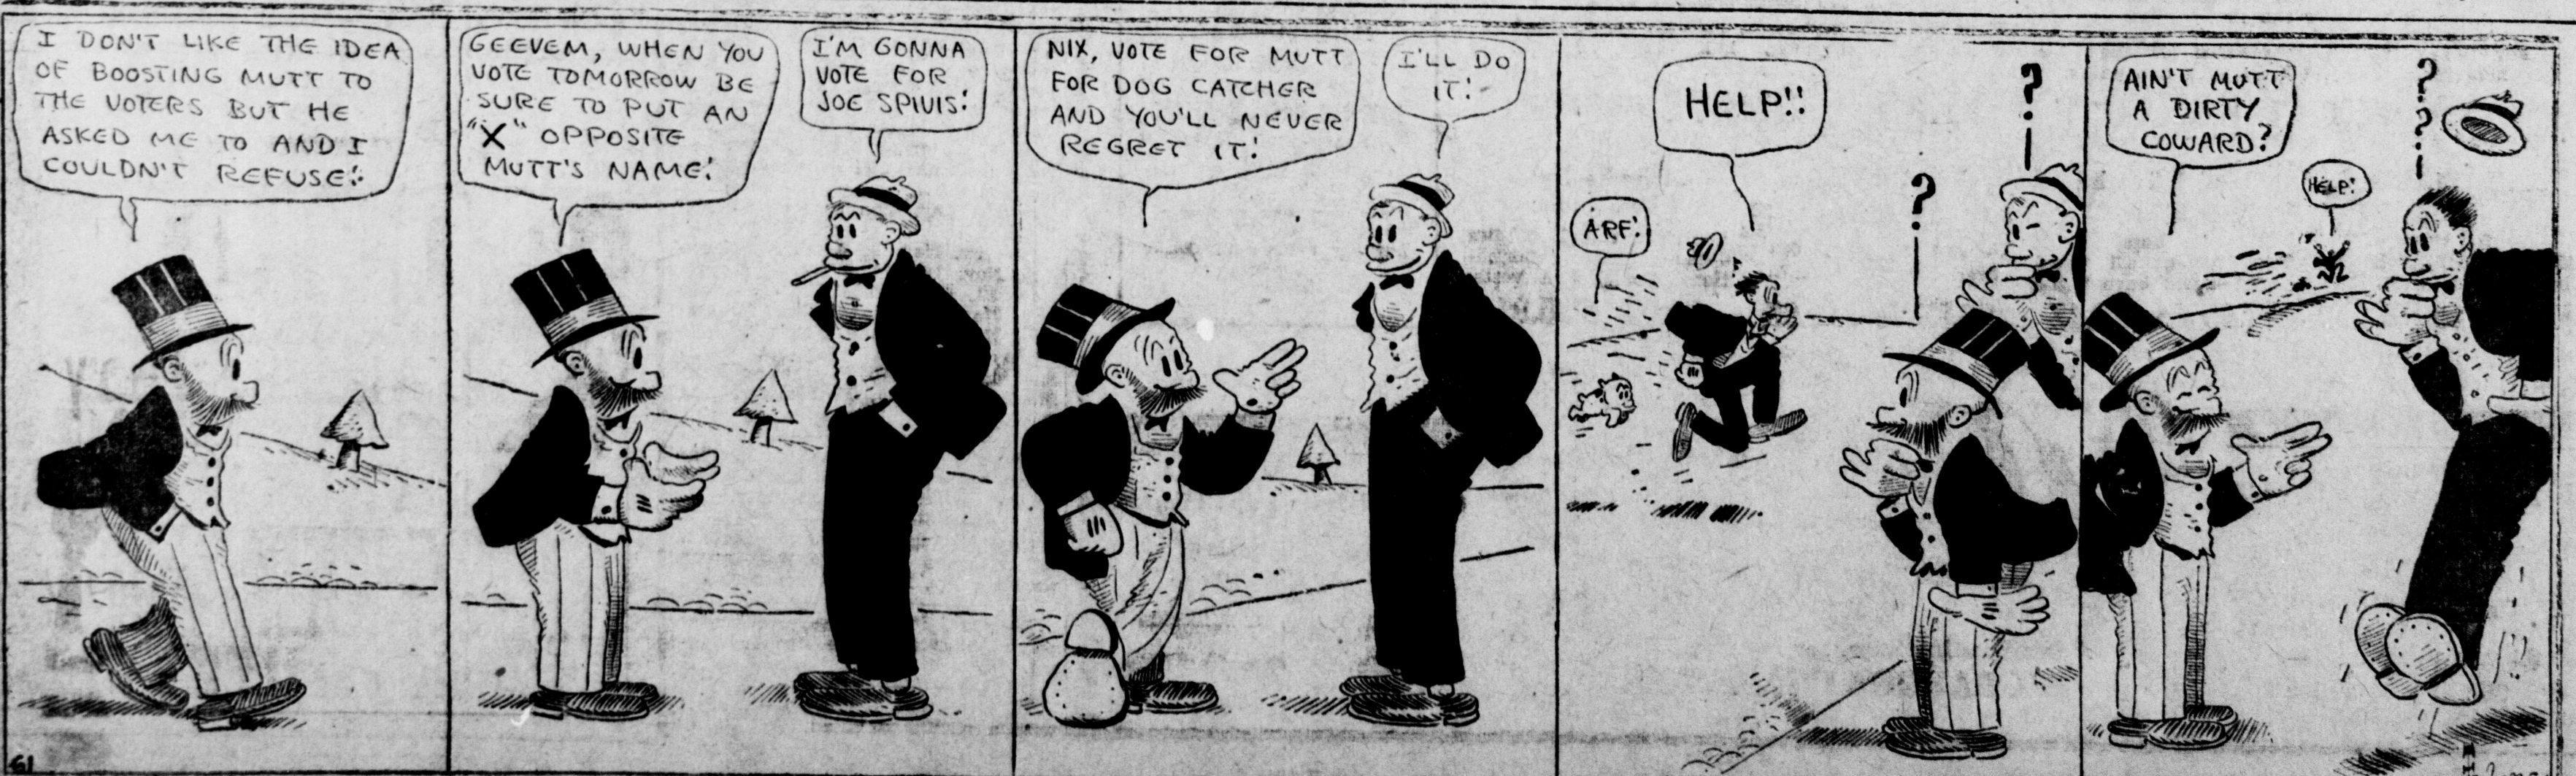

When you have a feeling of discomfort after meals, try the suggestion above. Thousands of people have found that Black-Draught promotes relief in indigestion by stimulating the liver and stomach to perform their normal functions.

Saturday morning showed the effects of mischievous boys celebrating hallowe'en. They turned over a number of toilets and other things that was antagonistic to the aesthetic opinion of our citizens.

T. M. Rushing and son have moved their stock of groceries to their new store building and are now engaged in dishing out sugar, coffee, flour and meat and every thing that is good to eat.

The Baptist church has called Rev. J. D. Morris of Oklahoma City for one-half time. Mr. Morris is here and has taken charge of his work.

The pipe line people are now installing their machinery at the relay station and they have some oil in the large steel tank.

The cotton crop is about all gathered and the farmers will soon begin preparing their land for an other crop.

The improvements in town are still continuing and a number of new houses are expected this fall and winter.

There are a number of families moving in town and the country. People changing and getting ready for the winter.

The hi boys of Francis have rented the bank building and are now engaged in renovating it to be used as a basket ball hall.

Uncle G. has got to be one of the first business men in the town. He is continually rolling up subscriptions for the News and says that he is compelled to have something that will make him run slick so he can get around among the people and has gone to selling soap.

The water supervisor has been having trouble at the water station and the water supply has been short. We have been informed that the trouble has been adjusted and that the citizens of the town will no longer be out of water.

Jeff Wilcoxson, street supervisor, is summoning the men to work on the streets next Friday and we are looking for some effective work.

The ballot box is open this morning but very few voting up to this time. We are looking for a light vote at this box for the political spirit seems to be at a low ebb here.

The oil people on section 19 are still at work but with little success. It seems that the natural troubles are going to defeat them.

Sunshine and Fresh Air Prescribed for Bad Girls

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The English reformers' idea of making bad girls better is to give them trips to the seaside. Accordingly last year several of the detention institutions for young girls took parties of inmates to various seaside resorts, where they were given a two weeks' vacation with only the supervision of two matrons to each party of 25 girls.

Last year's outing proved so successful that nearly all similar institutions this year took up the idea and allowed their better behaved girls to have a vacation. The expenses for the trip, above what it would have cost to feed and provide for the girls at the institution, were donated by persons interested in progressive and humanizing methods in the correctional institutions of the country.

"The condition of Mrs. Warren G. Harding, widow of President Harding, was somewhat better this morning. She ate a hearty breakfast and had a fairly good night's rest. She was restless until about 1 a. m. and then went to sleep and had from three to five hours of sleep."

TULSA CHANGES TELEPHONE SYSTEM OVER NIGHT

TULSA, Nov. 4.—What is said to be the largest "cut over" of telephones in industrial history from the "number please" system to the "dial, or automatic method, took place at midnight, Nov. 1 here. The change effected 23,500 telephones.

The Southwestern Bell company has been working on the project of installing automatic telephones in Tulsa for more than a year. The entire telephone system was changed over night.

Though the operating force of the telephone company will be reduced approximately one-half, no regular employees will be released, company officials said. All operators who were released when the automatic system went into operation, were employed on a temporary basis.

ALLEGED FORGER SENT TO GRANITE ON CHARGE

Bob Ingram, alleged financial Ponzi who is charged with passing a half dozen forged checks on Ada merchants about a month ago, is serving time at Granite as a result of a sentence on his plea of guilty for the same offenses at Pauls Valley, according to announcements of the sheriff's office here.

Pontotoc county officers have filed forgery charges against Ingram to be acted on at the completion of his two years sentence at Granite. Ingram is alleged to have confessed to passing forged checks in Ada and Lawton when he was arrested at Pauls Valley.

Ingram is alleged to have forged checks on the name of R. C. White for salary on dairy and farm work and to have endorsed the checks with the name of Earl Johnson.

Ingram made a specialty of passing the checks on hardware concerns here.

Raincoats Find Ready Market in Seathwaite

(By the Associated Press)
LONDON, Nov. 4.—Seathwaite, in Borrowdale, has been picked out as the wettest place in wet England. The meteorological department has published a table of the average annual rainfalls for the last 60 years, the prize falling to Seathwaite, which has recorded an average precipitation of 129.48 inches. Seathwaite's actions in the matter of weather have been eccentric, even for the British Isles, and during the last half century this place has recorded an average of 4.06 inches of rain in June, but in August there has been an average of 8 inches.

London can claim to be one of the driest spots of England, with only 23.5 inches as an annual average.

However, he had roped another steer by the foot over the back of the first one, which started in the opposite direction, and tightening the rope, ran it through the young man's hand so fast that it burned off two fingers to the bone.

Bungalow Most Convenient and Practical of All Small Homes

Floor Plan.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

For the smaller homes where the housewife does her own work the building experience of years has suggested nothing more convenient and practical than the bungalow. And, happily, this type of building has been developed until it may be built with an attractiveness exceeded by few, if any, other types of homes.

The house illustrated here is an excellent example of how a small home may be built to have the comfort and advantage usually associated with more pretentious residences.

The exterior of this home finds much of its charm in the fact that it is not burdened with superfluous ornamentation. The porch, with its arched entrance, is inviting and the adjoining terrace with its trellis will be most attractive when proper planting incloses it in a living wall of green.

The front entrance from the porch goes directly into the living room, 19 by 15 feet. The charm of this room is insured by the fireplace and the excellent lighting and ventilation. To the right of the living room, as you enter, is the dining room, 15 by 13 feet, with its wall spaces arranged nicely to accommodate the required pieces of furniture.

The kitchen will be found to be especially well arranged and of a size to permit the most convenient and efficient working arrangement. The built-in cases are on either side of the sink and working space, which is directly in front of a window, assures the worker an abundance of light and a cheerful outlook. A service porch to the rear adds its quota of convenience.

The bedrooms and the bath are reached through a hall opening from the living room. The bedrooms are well lighted and ventilated and well provided with closet space. The bath has been placed in a suitable place in the floor plan.

Home Purchase Is Now Considered an Investment

The purchase of a home has never been considered a financial investment by those having thorough knowledge of the subject. It has, however, been an investment in comfort and happiness and an investment in so far as one's community standing is affected.

Under the present high rental conditions, the purchase and ownership of a home can be and is a sound financial investment, where the property purchased is at a reasonable or fair valuation.

A home which requires a monthly expenditure of approximately $100, which amount takes care of the deferred payment and interest, would cost in rental alone at least that amount. At this figure we do not take into consideration interest on the mortgage or taxes, but even with these included a very considerable profit is shown over the same expenditure in renting.

Waxing Floors

A good method of treating oak floors, and one which permits of a very high gloss waxed finish, is as follows: After thoroughly cleaning the floors, taking care that no dust is present, give the floor a coat of high-grade floor varnish, and when thoroughly dry rub smooth with mineral wool, then apply second coat. After this is thoroughly dry, again rub smooth with mineral wool and the floor is ready to be waxed and polished.

The greatest care should be taken that the floors are thoroughly free from dust or dirt in order that the finish may not be marred by dust spots or lumps, which will be the case if dirt and dust is not thoroughly removed.

Double-Service Porch

Modern Home Feature

The old-style porch is no longer in evidence in the more modern homes, but is now arranged so that it can be used in all seasons of the year. The large inclosed sun room with its French windows opening onto the living room is a most valuable and important feature, doing double service as a screened-in porch in the summer and a sun room or alcove for the living room in the winter.

The majority of these porches are constructed with the general house plan, the foundations extending under the porch, which permits of connection with the basement in order that the floor be heated the same as the house in general. This is naturally of considerable expense, and much money can be saved and the same results attained through the proper insulating of the floor. A good insulating material poured to a depth of three inches and then covered with one-half inch of concrete or magnesite flooring is inexpensive.

Leave Empty Spaces

In arranging a sitting-room large spaces left empty look more comfortable and are more convenient in every way than a room too full of furniture. A home is not a furniture warehouse, but a place for people to live in, and to grow in and to move about in.

Oil Burners

The best method of judging an oil burner is through an investigation of the homes in which they are installed. The user will quickly tell you whether they are doing their work and in an economical manner.

"There has been a very perceptible improvement during the past 60 days," the review continues, "though the improvement has come review,

AIR SPEED PAGE MAY BE EXALTED

Record Established in Pulitzer Races Expected to be Broken

(By the Associated Press)

DAYTON, O., Oct. 1.—The world's airplane speed record of 243.63 miles an hour, made by Lieutenant A. J. Williams, U. S. Navy, in the Pulitzer races at St. Louis a year ago, is expected to be beaten by one of the three United States army aviators entered in this event at the International Air Races to be held here October 2, 3, and 4.

The navy will not take part in the races this year. This decision, made early last winter, conforms to a policy whereby the army is responsible for the defense of the Pulitzer trophy against international competitors, and the navy accepts a similar responsibility with respect to the international seaplane races for the Schneider Cup trophy.

The navy will defend this trophy against competitors from Great Britain and Italy at Chesapeake Bay near Baltimore on October 24 and 25.

There are no entrants for the Pulitzer race this year outside of the three United States army men. They will fly planes that went through the Pulitzer race at St. Louis last year. Two of the planes, reconditioned Curtiss army racers, will be flown by Lieutenant W. H. Brookley of McCook field and Captain Bert Skel, of Selfridge field, Mich. Lieutenant Harry H. Mills, of Wilbur Wright field, will fly a Verville-Sperry monoplane.

Wright field, where the races will be held this year has 5300 acres and a grand stand a mile long is being built for the spectators.

In order that those who attend may hear as well as see, loud speakers will be installed at intervals of 300 feet along the grand stand, and connected with the judges' and timers' stand at the start and finish of the 200 kilometer triangular course.

The army entrants have stated they expect to eclipse Lieutenant Williams' record by at least 20 miles an hour. They are figuring on a speed of between 260 and 270 miles an hour.

Lieutenant Alexander Pearson of McCook field, who was killed recently while he was flying the plane on which Lieutenant Williams made his record at St. Louis had touched a speed of 265 miles an hour. Pearson was making a practice flight and the wings of his plane collapsed while he was banking for a turn.

The Pulitzer trophy was first competed for in 1920. It has been won twice by the United States Army air service, once by the United States navy air service and once by a civilian flyer. In 1920 Lieutenant C. C. Mosley won it with the then record breaking speed of 156 miles an hour and in the intervening four years the speed has increased nearly 100 miles an hour.

PITTSBURGH BISHOP TO PRESIDE AT CONFERENCE

(By the Associated Press)

WOODWARD, Okla., Oct. 1.—Bishop Francis J. McConnell of Pittsburgh, Pa., will preside at the Oklahoma conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, which will be held here October 15 to 20, according to word received from church authorities at Chicago. He also will announce the ministerial appointments in the Oklahoma conference.

Among the prominent churchmen who will address the conference are: Dr. Edgar C. Tullar, Buffalo, N. Y., member of the Deacons board of the Methodist church; Dr. Ralph E. Dittendorfer, New York, corresponding secretary of the board of foreign missions; Dr. W. S. Bovard, Chicago, secretary of the board of education of the Methodist church and Dr. Clarence True Wilson, Washington, corresponding secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals.

Each day of the conference will be given over to addresses and discussions of some particular phase of the church work.

Boards of missions and their work will be discussed at the first day's sessions of the conference. Hospital and home aid will be the subject Thursday, the following day. Education will be featured in Friday's program. Saturday Bishop McConnell will deliver an address on "A Challenge to Leadership." Several hundred persons are expected to attend the conference.

HEAVY-HANDED DINERS WRECK TABLEWARE AT WEMBLEY

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON.—The average daily crowd of 70,000 people eating in the numerous restaurants at the Wembley Exhibition are responsible for the smashing of 30,000 pieces of crockery, every six days. In an average week the breakages are 761 dozen cups, 345 dozen saucers, 472 dozen plates and 774 dozen miscellaneous pieces, according to the firm which has the contract for feedings the visitors.

These figures do not include glasses broken in the drinking saloons, and it is stated that it is no uncommon thing in a busy week for one bar to smash 1,500 glasses. As there are some 5 bars in the exhibition, it is apparent that the number of glasses smashed since the exhibition opened in April must be about 700,000.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

RESPECT TRAFFIC OFFICER

Be attentive to the traffic officer. He will then be more considerate of you. Then too he is a human being and entitled to respect.

Traffic regulations include the right of the police to vary regular rules where necessary or desirable under unusual conditions, or at congested points and in case of emergency, and they are to be obeyed accordingly.

Remember that the traffic officer is at work to help motor and pedestrian traffic as rapidly, safely and smoothly as possible. In your relations with him be courteous, thoughtful and reasonable. It pays. The traffic officer hasn't the easiest job in the world. That's worth keeping in mind.

"WATCH OUT FOR THE CHILD"

In Washington during the summer months one will see signs which read:

"Vacation days. Watch out for the child." A very good sign but the warning is of just as much importance during the 12 months of the year. To be sure, drivers should be especially alert during vacation months when children are at home and often playing in the street. But then one can never be too alert.

Cities must provide adequate playgrounds for children and then must see to it that the children play there. It is a curious fact that so many boys prefer to play where motor cars and trucks are speeding by. Boys like to take chances and parents must assume the obligation of teaching their boys and girls never to take a chance.

Always be careful.

KEEP TO THE RIGHT

Keep to the right. That is a motor car axiom in America.

Keep to the right in passing another car and in rounding a corner. Keep to the right when approaching hilltop, cross roads or street.

Keep to the right of the center of the road even if you think you have the highway to yourself.

Keep to the right of street cars. Keep to the right on a street divided either by a parkway, walk, street car reservation, isle of safety, etc.

Accidents by the score would be prevented if this simple rule was observed carefully day and night.

Keep to the right.

ALWAYS BE CAREFUL

Look where you are going. Drive where you are looking. Strange as it may seem the picture above describes a common cause of accidents.

MARKHAM HITS HARD BLOW AT GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP OF RAILROADS IN COUNTRY

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—The railroads are in the first line of defense against those who would make this country a second Russia. C. H. Markham, president, Illinois Central Railroad Company, declared here today in an address before the fiftieth annual convention of the American Bankers Association at the Auditorium theatre, in which he attacked proposals for government ownership of the roads.

Mr. Markham said that "the broad principle to be considered was whether the people desire more government in business, and eventually all government in business, which is communism. The patriotic grounds to be considered are those of the greatest good for the greater number, which constitute the essential principle of democracy."

"Our nation has developed as the great defender of the rights of the individual. Private property is the cornerstone of our industrial structure. We have had to regulate many private businesses, including railroads, but we have always managed to avoid confiscation. We have never favored government ownership as a national policy, and therefore we have never been called upon to decide definitely just how far it should go. If the railroads are taken over by the government, we must face the fact that the big step in reversing our old settled policy will be taken and there will be no stopping the force once we have let it loose. If there is no particular reason why the government should not own and run the railroads, is there any reason why it should not take over also the banks, stores, factories, farms, until all of us are government employees and the ideal of the soviet is attained?"

"The largest business enterprise of the government is the postoffice department which has about 300,000 employees. The railroads have about 2,000,000 employees. There are approximately as many railroad employees as there are in all government service, federal, state, county and municipal, put together. If the railroads are taken over by the government there will be one government employee out of every ten wage earners in the country instead of one out of 20 as at present. If this one great step is taken into government ownership, can any other industry in the country feel that it is safe?"

Sore Government Ownership. "The railroads, under private ownership, are among our heaviest taxpayers. Under government ownership, the railroads would be no more subject to taxation than the post offices now are. The local governments to stop payments on their bonds and to go into bankruptcy. The tax problem would be a great deal more vexatious than it is today."

"The acquisition of the railroads would add more than $20,000,000,000 to our national debt, already the largest ever carried by any nation no longer in existence than ours. If government railroads in this country were no more successful than they are elsewhere in the world the interest on that twenty billions of purchase price would be the cause for additional burdens on the taxpayers left to carry it. As the tax burden developed it would not be surprising to see other industries welcoming government ownership for themselves. They would gain immunity from taxation and their owners would probably be protected from loss. The Constitution prevents the confiscation of private property, and government ownership can be accomplished only by paying a fair price for the properties taken over."

"It would be hard to keep politics from influencing promotion on government railroads and it would be hard to have expenditures directed without thought of political expediency. With competition abolished, the incentive to render satisfactory service would very largely be gone. What would happen to the morale of

New Sweet Potato Storage Houses in State for Summer

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 30.—Two new 15,000 bushel sweet potato storage houses, one at Rush Springs and the other at Crescent, have been built in the state during the past summer, according to E. C. Dustin, secretary of the state market commission.

Several sweet potato storage house projects in Oklahoma have failed through lack of management and failure of growers in the vicinity of the storage houses to co-operate with the owners and managers. Dustin said.

By retaining a part of the crop, and storing it in the warehouse, the owners are enabled to obtain better prices late in the winter, he declared.

During the cold months fires are kept burning in the storehouses to prevent the vegetables from becoming frost bitten. Fresh air is permitted to circulate through the buildings even during the coldest months. Fresh air is necessary to prevent the sweet potatoes from "sweating" and developing black rust, the secretary of the market commission explained.

What Was "Robin Hood's Barn"

Nigh on to a thousand years ago, wealthy wayfarers learned to choose some roundabout route into Nottingham, rather than the short cut that led straight through Sherwood Forest.

For the forest was "Robin Hood's barn"—and doughty Robin and his merry men were eager coin collectors.

People who buy without regard to advertising nowadays journey at high cost in roundabout ways, to make their purchases where values are dubious. For the shrewd buyer of anything, in our times, sends his money to market the straight, sure way, guided by advertising.

What is not advertised may, perhaps, be worth buying. But what is advertised simply must be beyond question. He would be a foolhardy merchant, or a reckless manufacturer, who dared publicity for anything questionable.

All the risk these days is in going 'round Robin Hood's barn. Buying on the strength of the advertised promise is the way to buy with least risk of disappointment and greatest certainty of satisfaction.

"WHITE TIGER" LATEST DEAN, COMING MONDAY

"White Tiger" is the fancy-captivating title of the "Universal Jewel" photoplay which will be seen at the American theatre beginning Monday, in which Priscilla Dean is said to excel her personal triumph in a similar underworld story of two or three years ago, "Outside the Law," and Tod Browning's handiwork as an author and director.

The former Browning-Dean success, "Outside the Law," was laid in San Francisco's colorful Chinatown. The new underworld picture from these two artists is laid in the amazing atmosphere of international crookdom.

The heroine Miss Dean impersonates, is a girl raised with knowledge of the difference between right and wrong, believing that slick work in slipping a string of pearls or some society lady's neck or the stickpin out of some man's tie is her rightful contribution to society's progress as a useful and active citizen. "Active" is right, judging from the operations of the adventurous trio of which she is a member.

The word "and" occurs 35,543 times in the Old Testament, while the word "reverend" occurs only once.

Impressions of Chicago

By Professor Myers.

One cannot pretend to exhaust the possibilities of a subject in dealing with an institution or with a city after a mere matter of a few months connection with institution or residence in that city, without laying ones self open to the charge of superficiality or arrogant assumption of superiority. Therefore, it is not my purpose to write a learned treatise on Chicago, its inhabitants, or their peculiar manners of speech and personal mannerisms. What I shall try to do will be to give some first-hand impressions received and observations made during the course of my second quarter's residence in the University of Chicago.

The first disadvantage that I noted while in Chicago was the loss of personality and the absence of intimate contact with the faculty and with city life in general. This of course is true, not only of Chicago, and Chicago University, but is typical of large cities and great educational centers throughout the country. The student attends his classes and does his work, but as far as becoming acquainted with the faculty is concerned, he does not do it. In extension, it may be said that where you have a faculty of four hundred and a student body of nineteen thousand with nearly fifty buildings scattered over a considerable area, you necessarily do not get the personal touch to the extent that you do in a smaller institution. The whole thing impresses one as being cold, impersonal, and even heartless, when the fact of the matter is not that neither the University nor the city cares, but that both are so big you can't begin to take them in.

Another disadvantage that is ever present in the life of a city like Chicago is the existence of institutions that have as their aim the destruction of the fundamentals of religion and government. The cosmopolitan nature of the city is largely responsible for this situation. You may go into one large section of the city and see nothing but negroes, into another and see only Greeks, into still another and see no one except Jews. On the University Campus you see Japanese and Chinese in large numbers; also negroes, French, Spanish, Italian, and Greeks. The seeker after pleasure or information in the course of his wanderings throughout the city comes into contact with races from all parts of the world. Where so many races live together, there will be seen all manner of creeds and no creed at all, all kinds of politics and a hatred for government in general; the highest type of citizenship; and the citizen who is a menace to all society. If one enters this kind of life with strong religious convictions and firm principles of government he may survive, as of course, many do, but woe to the man or woman whose convictions are weak and subject to every new fancy in religion or politics. I should say lack of religion and government for according to my observation that is what it amounts to; in the case of that person the chances are very favorable that he will yield to these pernicious influences and will seek to undermine all that is sane in government and sacred in religion.

Still another disadvantage is the prevalence of crime and the pervasiveness of justice by the power of wealth. All this has a tendency to make any right thinking person pessimistic and cynical. Violations of traffic laws, the Volstead Act and the general laws of decency and morals, all observed at the hands of the supposedly best class, cause one to wonder what we are coming to.

Coming now to the advantages of living in a city of the size and nature of Chicago, and in a University of the character of Chicago University these may be classified under the following heads:

1. Commercial; 2. Cultural; 3. Religious; 4. Social.

The commercial advantages of Chicago are so evident that they need not be mentioned here. Under the cultural advantages, as well as the numerous colleges, universities, private and parochial schools and high schools within the city and its suburbs, there are to be found such great cultural institutions as the Chicago Art Institute; the Field Museum, a thorough inspection of which would constitute a liberal education. Next are to be considered the magnificent parks; Lincoln Park, Washington Park, Grant Park, and many others which cover thousands of acres and with their rolling expanse of green, with their shrubbery, their lakes and their streams, offer a very valuable means of culture and recreation.

In the matter of religion, there are certain striking advantages. In the University itself, services are held regularly every Sunday in Mandel Hall and some of the ablest preachers in the country deliver masterly sermons. Throughout the city one has no trouble finding any number of churches of his own faith and in these he may worship and be welcome. Then, too, there are many charitable institutions in the city, all of which are doing a great work in caring for the incurables, the aged and the orphans. The University Settlement is supported by the University at an annual expense of $25,000 and the famous Hull House headed by Jane Addams is performing a great service in the Ghetto.

Last but not least are the social advantages found in the University. In connection with the regular class room work one comes in contact with some of the biggest men in the country and the broadening influence of this contact is certainly worth while. Acquaintances are formed with fellow students of mature years, men and women of great ability from all over the world. Taking a leaf from my personal experiences, I numbered among my intimate friends the following: a Frenchman, an Italian, a Jew, as regards nationalities. Regarding rank in the profession, I counted as friends a professor of mathematics, at Purdue University; a professor of Spanish, at the University of Wisconsin; a professor of history, at Butler College, now at Arkansas University; and a mathematics instructor in the Manual Training High School, Kansas City.

One must take the good with the bad, the bitter with the sweet, for a great city is simply a cross section of the universe and when any individual enters its life he ceases to be a citizen of a city, state or nation, and becomes temporarily at least a citizen of the world.

ADA HIGH PUBLIC SPEAKING INTEREST SHOWING UP WELL

There is a good enrollment in the High School Public Speaking class. Recently they organized into a Club, with the election of the following officers: President, G. R. Norman; Vice-president, Thelma Wardlow; Secretary, Lucille Webster; Treasurer, Busy Lambert; Sergeant-at-arms, Raymond Webb, and Yell-leader, Clifford Gray.

Under the direction of Mr. German, coach of this activity, the club is preparing an original drama for presentation to the public soon. This promises to be the best play ever produced by students of Ada high. After this production, about half of the members will devote strenuous attention to declamation, reading and debate.
